

businesscompanion

trading standards law explained

Introduction

In this section

Introduction

Introduction

All businesses that sell goods and services to the public have a duty to ensure they are not putting their customers and others at risk. For obvious reasons, this is particularly true for businesses that supply potentially dangerous items such as knives and bladed items, and hazardous substances such as corrosives and poisons.

The guidance contained in this text covers the new controls brought in by the Offensive Weapons Act 2019 (OWA) as well as older legislation that also covers these products. It has been designed to provide businesses with clear, practical information about the legal controls and their obligations under the law. It looks at things like labelling, age restrictions and different types of sale - for example, the differences between selling in-store and online, as well as other types of 'remote' sales, such as mail order or telephone sales.

While the emphasis of this guidance is on helping your business to get things right, it is worth remembering that you may be prosecuted if you break the law. This reflects how important it is to make sure dangerous goods do not fall into the wrong hands, for the sake of businesses, consumers and society as a whole.

Part 1 of this text focuses on acids, other corrosive substances and explosives precursors or poisons; Part 2 covers the marketing, sale and delivery of knives and other bladed articles / products.

Knives, bladed items and hazardous materials \(homepage\) >

© 2022 Chartered Trading Standards Institute

Source URL:

<https://www.businesscompanion.info/focus/knives-bladed-items-and-hazardous-materials/introduction>