

ADR criteria

In this section

There is a list of criteria that ADR bodies must comply with if they are to become 'approved' ADR bodies for the purposes of the legislation.

A large part of the regulations contains detailed criteria laying down how an approved ADR body is to operate. All approved ADR bodies have to prove that they meet a strict set of criteria covering:

- how the ADR body can be accessed
- expertise, independence and impartiality
- conflict of interest, ensuring that the ADR body acts impartially
- transparency
- effectiveness
- fairness
- legality
- reasons the ADR body can refuse to deal with a case

The criteria are detailed to ensure that the parties have confidence in the ADR process.

This site contains impartial free information, and is Government-backed.

The content on Business Companion is written and verified by expert contributors, but is not designed to be a replacement for professional advice and is intended only for guidance; only the courts can give an authoritative interpretation of the law.

Though not marked as relevant for Northern Ireland, the advice and guidance that applies to England can be taken to reflect the 'spirit' of the law in NI, but should not be relied upon without professional advice.

If you are in any doubt about your legal responsibilities with regard to the topics on this site and would like more guidance, start by getting in touch with your local trading standards service; you can find their contact details by using the search tool on the Chartered Trading Standards Institute website.

We store cookies on your computer to help us improve this website. If you proceed, we'll assume you're happy with this; otherwise, you can change your cookie settings at any time.

© 2020 Chartered Trading Standards Institute
